they both agreed that it was not more profitable to be hanged for the murder of Dick Ashland than to run the risk of the same charge on being hanged for a second time, attempted to take Lord Cleve's life. On the one side, the near certainty of exposure and retaliation; on the other, the possibility of escape and continued fortune grained temptingly.

PERFUMING THE SKIN.

Women Have Found Another Use for Hypodermic Syringes.
From Paris come the news that perfumes have been restored to favor.

The use of hypodermic injections of violet extract is the latest fad of the Parisienne. This method is said to impart lasting fragrance to the skin. It is already quite easy to select among the women at receptions those who are addicted to this habit.

The plan originated with a Paris druggist, who communicated it to a few well-known actresses. They confided in others, who in turn told their friends. Now, it is asserted, half the society women in the gay city use the needle and the delicate extract.

It is all the more surprising from the fact that, until very recently, the use of a needle had been considered exceedingly repulsive. From refined taste avoided everything in that line except a delicate sachet powder, which was allowed to find a place in the handkerchief, and clothes closet.

Most Parisian whims find enthusiastic supporters here, however, and it is very probable that the use of the needle for perfuming the skin will become a habit of the future.

Extracts have increased in value and popularity. The most popular is the "permanent" fragrance. The favorite dilluted odors are violet and lavender. Horrible to relate, musk is being used in the most repulsive manner.

Every woman has her favorite. The rule is that there must be no mixing of odors. The contents of hypodermic syringes are used in the most repulsive manner.

Edward Wall and became a hybrid between a private secretary and a valet. The MacLachlans had a difficulty in discovering the place where Sir William Cuthbertson had performed his wedding and where the distinguished patient was slowly recovering.

It was a pretty little cottage standing in a walled garden on a sparsely wooded road between Sherborne and Hailford on the Thames. A former owner had given it the fanciful name of "The Rest."

The nearest habitation, a small house, usually had a few guests during the summer season, was about five and twenty yards away and unoccupied at the time. Other residences, strewn here and there, were hidden deep in the park-like grounds, and gave rise to no disturbances.

The room in which the distinguished patient was slowly recovering was situated on the ground floor of the little cottage. It was spacious, and plainly, but extremely comfortable. The walls were painted a bluish stone-gray, and no pattern of any kind attracted attention.

There were no pictures, and the only furniture consisted of a bed, a table, and a chair. The doors and windows looked across a small, but beautifully kept lawn, on to a brick wall smothered with a Virginia creeper.

below it improved conditions of soil yield a larger profit to the grower, but sometimes means the loss of the best of the crop. The chestnut grove once planted is a source of great revenue for generations.

I own a farm of 140 acres at Enfield, Pa., where I have planted chestnut trees about 8 years old; some of the trees bear from 6 to 8 quarts of chestnuts per tree this fall. The grove of chestnuts planted about 1870 is now in the year 1885 than all the rest of the farm.

Large tracts of land suitable for chestnut planting can be bought at $5 to $10 per acre.

Kafir corn is not a corn, but a sorghum, but differing from the sweet sorghum in having a shorter stalk with much thicker and broader leaves and much heavier seed-heads. So far as I know, the extremes of yield in seed have been reached by the use of the experimental plots here shown at the rate of 112 bushels per acre; but twenty to thirty bushels is certainly a fair average.

The nearest habitation, a small house, usually had a few guests during the summer season, was about five and twenty yards away and unoccupied at the time. Other residences, strewn here and there, were hidden deep in the park-like grounds, and gave rise to no disturbances.

The room in which the distinguished patient was slowly recovering was situated on the ground floor of the little cottage. It was spacious, and plainly, but extremely comfortable. The walls were painted a bluish stone-gray, and no pattern of any kind attracted attention.

There were no pictures, and the only furniture consisted of a bed, a table, and a chair. The doors and windows looked across a small, but beautifully kept lawn, on to a brick wall smothered with a Virginia creeper.

THIS "HOODOO" COMES HIGH.
Evil Spirit Possesses a Georgia Doctor.
The doctor, a well-known physician in this city, in which the doctor holds a high position, has been afflicted with the "hoodoo" for some time.

The only case on record in which accident insurance companies have actually paid indemnities in a case of a "hoodoo" came to light in this city last week.

Dr. James A. Thornton, a well known and respected physician in Atlanta, Ga., is the "hoodoo" man in this instance, and the malevolent influence is directed against his left foot, which has suffered several times during the last twelve months, and, as a result of the latest mishap, it may be amputated.

Agents of the accidents companies in this city, in which the doctor holds a high position, have been afflicted with the "hoodoo" for some time.

It was a year ago when the malign design of the supposed evil spirit made its first manifestation.

The doctor, a well-known physician in this city, in which the doctor holds a high position, has been afflicted with the "hoodoo" for some time.

Dr. Thornton was at Stone Mountain, twenty miles from Atlanta, on a shooting trip, when his gun slipped and exploded, wounding his left foot.

His friends bear witness to the fact that Thornton is a careful man, and they, too, share his belief that some evil spirit has been at work.

Dr. Thornton carries accident policies in the Employers' Liability of London, the American United States Casualty, the Preferred of New York, and the Travelers.

The "hoodoo" has already cost the companies about $1,000, and if the doctor is unfortunate enough to lose his leg entirely he will be paid about $15,000.

THE MODERN HEROINE.
A Literal Portraiture From the Debutante of a Famous Novel.

As many readers of fiction have had cause to complain, authors and artists often work at cross purposes, and the novelist's eloquent conception of the heroine's personal attributes is but faintly shadowed forth in the artist's work.

Here are the eloquent words of the author from which the faithful portrait was drawn:

"She was the fairest of earth's daughters. Her shapely head was molded in the form of a perfect oval, poised gracefully on a swan-like neck.

Put in all crops in season, as much of success will depend on this. The farmer should be careful to select the best seed, and to plant it in the best soil.

Have the best rotation for crops that will accord with the condition of the soil, and the purpose to which they are to be devoted.

Use the most approved implements, and get all the information from them you can. Study the needs of your land and if you have to use fertilizers, supply them in the best manner.

Have no more fences than are absolutely required, thus economizing land, labor and expense.

Remove all obstructions from meadows and cultivated fields, for greater economy in working the same and better results.

"A Word...in Season."
The season is Spring. Spring when you call on your body for all its energy, and tax it to the limit of effort. Does it answer you when you call? Does it creep unwillingly to work? This is the natural effect of the waste of winter. So much for the season. Now for the word. If you would eat heartily, sleep soundly, work easily, and feel like a new being, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

An Economical Out-Clipper.
The high price which clipper cuts bring in comparison with unclipped has led to the construction of a simple and light running clipper of great capacity. The machine is dustless, as all impurities are removed the instant they become loose from the grain.

Congdon has received a letter from Adj. Gearhart, of Duluth, stating that the woman, while a soldier's widow, is only in need of aid because of her own extravagance.

Doesn't Sound Well.

H. W. Crowell, an attorney from St. Cloud, who was in attendance at the recent term of court here, had himself interviewed in a recent issue of the Journal Press of this city in regard to Pryde who was condemned to be hung for a brutal murder, and if he had confined himself strictly to facts the interview would have read better. He states that "the theory that Pryde killed his victim for money which he was supposed to have on his person is a wrong one, but was simply for the desire for taking human life. The opportunity presented itself, and the insane conduct of the fiend consummated his desire." The facts are that the "opportunity presented itself" because Pryde had planned the murder a week ahead and had decoyed his victim to this city, and as to the theory that the murder was not for money it is exploded by the statement of Mr. Lum in open court, the condemned man's attorney, that Pryde went through Patterson's pockets after he shot him, but didn't get anything. Further on Mr. Crowell says: "Pryde received his sentence with a calmness that was pitiable to behold. He was totally unaffected by his awful fate, and smiled during the court's sentence. In fact the court was vastly more moved by the sentence than the culprit, for Judge Holland, who is a man past the meridian of life, was so weak when he had completed his task that he could scarcely move." As far as Pryde's smiling when sentence was passed upon him, Mr. Crowell must have been the only one of an audience of 600 people who saw the "smile" and every eye in the room was centered upon the murderer, and he was as far from smiling as the statement is from the facts.

Saturday Evening, March 21st.

The Motion Denied.

As indicated in our last issue Leon E. Lum appeared before Judge Holland on Monday in the Pryde murder case and made an argument for a bill of exceptions to go to the supreme court on a question as to whether previous good character and the plea of guilty did not constitute exceptional circumstances in the meaning of the law. Judge Holland denied the motion.

Miss Mary Philbrook, New Jersey's first woman lawyer, was in the chambers in Jersey City a few days ago to make a motion concerning the foreclosure of a mortgage. All the other lawyers present had their hats off, too, to whether she ought to take her hat off, too, out of respect to the court.

To settle the point she walked up close to the bench and asked Chancellor McGill in a stage whisper if she was obliged to remove her hat. The chancellor looked amused and with a smile said:

"Oh, no, it is not necessary. Proceed with your motion."

Miss Philbrook made her motion tersely and with the utmost respect. The chancellor received decision.

The primary elections in the dif-

night for the selection of delegates to the republican county convention which is called for to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon at 3 o'clock at the gates elected were:

Pennell, P. M. Lagerquist, J. C.
Smallwood and J. S. Gardner.

and F. W. Wieland.

ard Skinner, J. F. Bartlett and Ed.
Breheny.

Fourth ward—John Larson, Peter

Britton.

Fifth ward—J. A. Wilson, Ed.
Woodbury, Dan. Doran, C. A. Walker,

ville—J. L. Berg. Pine River—A. T.

H. W. Crowell, an attorney from St. Cloud, who was in attendance at the recent term of court here, had himself interviewed in a recent issue of the Journal Press of that city in regard to Pryde who was condemned to be hung for a brutal murder, and if he had confined himself strictly to facts the interview would have read better. He states that "the theory that Pryde killed his victim for money which he was supposed to have on his person is a wrong one,
but was simply for the desire for taking human life. The opportunity presented itself, and the insane cunning of the fiend consummated his crime." The facts are that the "opportunity presented itself" because Pryde had planned the murder a week ahead and had decoyed his victim to this city, and as to the theory that the murder was not for money it is exploded by the statement of Mr.
Lum in open court, the condemned man's attorney, that Pryde went through Patterson's pockets after he shot him, but didn't get anything.
Further on Mr. Crowell says: "Pryde received his sentence with a calmness that was pitiable to behold. He was totally unaffected by his awful fate,
and smiled during the court's sentence. In fact the court was vastly more moved by the sentence than the culprit, for Judge Holland, who is a man past the meridian of life, was so weak when he had completed his task that he could scarcely move." As far as Pryde's smiling when sentence was passed upon him, Mr. Crowell must have been the only one of an audience of 600 people who saw the "smile" and every eye in the room was centered upon the murderer, and he was as far from smiling as the statement is from the facts.

The Motion Denied.

As indicated in our last issue Leon E. Lum appeared before Judge Holland on Monday in the Pryde murder case and made an argument for a bill of exceptions to go the supreme court on a question as to whether previous good character and the plea of guilt did not constitute exceptional circumstances in the meaning of the law. Judge Holland denied the motion.

New Point in Court Etiquette.

Miss Mary Philbrook, New Jersey's
first woman lawyer, was in the chambers in Jersey City a few days ago to make a motion concerning the foreclosure of a mortgage. All the other lawyers present had their hats off, and Miss Philbrook was in doubt as to whether she ought to take hers off, too,
out of respect to the court.

To settle the point she walked up close to the bench and asked Chancellor Mallory in a stage whisper if she was obliged to remove her hat. The chancellor looked amused and with a smile
said:

"Oh, no, it is not necessary. Proceed with your motion, and let me hear Miss Philbrook make her motion terse and with the utmost self possession. The chancellor reserved decision.

Mary A. Livermore.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore celebrated her twenty-fifth birthday very quietly at Melrose on Dec. 19. She had a cold and was confined to her room most of the day. She received many congratulations by letter and telegram, and many presents. In the evening she made an address in the Universalist church at Lynn, "A Dream of Tomorrow." At the close of the lecture she held a brief reception and received the congratulations of many friends. A formal celebration took place at Salem on Dec. 23, when Mrs. Livermore was the guest of the Massachusetts Work club.
Mrs. Livermore at 75 is fuller of power than any young woman in Massachusetts. May she see many happy returns of the day!—Boston Woman's Journal.

Athletics at Bryn Mawr.

Bryn Mawr is keeping up with the other women's colleges as far as athletics are concerned. The Philadelphia Ledger says that Frederick Law Olmsted is now at work upon plans for the grounds. These provide for a circular bicycle track with four laps to the mile, and within this is a large space for tennis, basket ball and other sports. This will be arranged that in winter time it can be flooded and provide a fine skating pond for the students. These grounds are kept in order by an athletic association of the undergraduates, who manage such affairs in much the same fashion as they are looked after at men's colleges.

Miss Noy Truitt.

Miss Noy Truitt, now a special student at a New England woman's college, is canvassing among rich philanthropists for a fund to give Japanese women a four years' training in America and fit them for teachers. Miss Truitt is a woman suffragist in America, but it is feared that if she should divulge her broad views in the land of the mikado she would be a woman sufferer.

Dress and Address.

Mrs. Isabella Martin of San Francisco created something of a furore in court
the other morning by appearing as her own attorney. She stated her case, made objections and took exceptions with the easy grace of a person bred to the law.
And all the time she wore a Paris gown

CURED BY USING

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral

A Preacher's Experience.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, St. Paul, Minn.

The Wade politicians will avoid "bad blood" hereafter by drawing party lines at election, believing that republicans could not expect a democrat to vote for him and vice versa, if such were the case.

The Brainerd Journal is nothing if not broadminded. It undertakes the task of indicating to the republicans who they should elect from congressmen down to governor, and even favors the republican idea of McKinley for the next president, in a mild form. It is brother Stivers getting himself in shape to forsake his democratic brethren right in the heat of battle!

The Cass County Pioneer, in the official call for the county convention which was held at Sylvan Lake on Tuesday, stated that the object was to elect six delegates to attend the Sixth district republican convention at Aitkin on Monday, March 23rd, to nominate a republican candidate for congress, and six delegates to attend the Minneapolis convention. If Bro. Oliver is going up to Aitkin on Monday with his delegation to nominate a republican candidate for congress, there is liable to be trouble.

Cass Favors Davis. The Cass County republican convention was held at Sylvan Lake on Tuesday, at which time the following delegates were elected to attend the Sixth district convention at Aitkin: W. H. Hallett, W. A. McDonald, M. Flint, A. J. Collins, Geo. L. Hardy and P. H. Hunsinger. The delegates elected to attend the state convention at Minneapolis were: L. R. Lohr, J. J. Ellis, J. A. Gilberg, Seth Phillips, Wm. Pennar and J. W. Richardson. The delegation is said to favor C. K. Davis as first choice for president and Wm. McKinley second.

What's the Use? The St. Paul Pioneer Press says that McKinley is the second choice of Minnesota republicans. What's the use of having a first choice if the second choice is the one you really expect to count on?—N. Y. Mercury. The Pioneer Press made the above prediction before that paper began running the "coupon" for the people of Minnesota to indicate their choice for president. Up to the present time the Pioneer Press has received over six times as many votes for McKinley for first choice as the next highest candidate. Besides, in this coupon contest he leads for second and third place, which would indicate that Minnesota was for McKinley first, last and all the time.

"Almost an Insult to Him." The Duluth Evening Herald prints a communication from Judge Brownell in regard to Hon. C. A. Towne and the party that elected him to congress. The letter says: "We should at once organize a free silver party with whom our distinguished congressman, when we send him back again to Washington, can accomplish something for the people worthy of his great ability. Why, to re-elect him and keep the gold party in power is almost an insult to him, as it ties him up so he can do but little compared with what he will do if we put a free silver party in power on Mr. Towne's platform."

It is hardly possible that more than a half dozen men, even in Duluth, would be as foolish as Mr. Brownell appears from the above assertions credited to his pen. It is a pity if Mr. Towne has reached that point in his political career where he is greater than the party that elected him. But, according to the above communication, it seems necessary to change the party or offer an insult to Mr. Towne. Those Duluth fellows appear to imagine that if Mr. Towne says so the entire republican party of these United States must change their views or everything will go to smash. "When we send him back to Washington" his views on the silver question will have to be changed, and there is little danger of his being "insulted." The Sixth district of Minnesota admires and appreciates the brilliant powers and oratory of Mr. Towne, but they will refuse to be misrepresented on the money question—free silver funds little, very little, favor in this district he pretends to represent.

To illustrate where the silver sentiment is drifting to we quote the following from F. M. Eddy, congressman from the Seventh Minnesota district, who passed through Minneapolis on Tuesday on his way home: "The sentiment for silver is increasing in a few places in the country, but taking the country over, it is on the decline. There are fewer free silver men in the house now than there were two years ago, and more now than there will be next congress. They were beaten three votes to one in the house this year. From a series of tables which I have prepared, counting every vote cast in 1894 for a free silver candidate, whether running as a republican, democrat or populist, and throwing in the socialist vote, the total vote for this new idea was less than one-fifth the total vote of the country. The vote in the house on silver shows 60 democrats and 30 republicans. Of the 60, 24 were Confederate soldiers, and all, save two or three, came from secession states. In the 60 are included the votes of the silver republican states, together with two votes each from Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and South Dakota, and one vote each from Minnesota, Kansas and North Carolina.

The inequality of representation gives silver a stronger showing in congress than it really is entitled to. A vote in Nevada, for instance, has five times as much representation on the floor of congress as a vote in Minnesota. A voter in Mississippi has four times as much representation in congress as a voter in Minnesota, Iowa or New York. In other words, the state of Mississippi, in its seven districts, counting votes cast for all candidates, was not as great, in 1894, as the vote cast in the Seventh district of Minnesota for my opponent and myself."

T. R. CONGDON WRITES FROM SPAIN.

An Interesting Article on the Habits and Customs of the People. The Writer Sees General Weyler and is Entertained by the U. S. Minister.

Through the courtesy of J. C. Congdon we are enabled to give our readers the following interesting letter from T. R. Congdon, a former resident of this city, and who has been in Paris for some years studying his profession with the masters of the old world:

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 15, '96. We left Paris Feb. 11th, and you will perhaps be more surprised than pleased to know that we traveled third-class, as all artists do here, and were accompanied by three artists friends. As you know the cars here are divided into compartments, and our party enjoyed one by themselves, which, you see, gave us a private drawing room, not quite so well furnished as your Pullman cars, however. The seats of the third-class on our line were upholstered and quite comfortable. We provided ourselves with an extra toothsome lunch, and four times a day turned our compartment into a veritable buffet. The journey through Southern France was very interesting, and we saw many ancient villages, with decayed houses, many surrounded by high stone walls, some 20 feet high, constructed as a safeguard in times of war. We were a good natured sort of a crowd, singing nearly all the time, which amused the French passengers very much, and when our voices became tired (and our audience also) we played eucure and so on. At 10:40 in the evening we arrived at Bordeaux, but as it was about our bed time we did not sample any of the celebrated wine made here.

At this place we change wagons—excuse me, I am writing English, and must say cars, as there were no sleeping cars on our train, we made quite a comfortable bunk on the seats, which runs crosswise of the car and are about eight feet long. I have told you how these cars are heated, a sort of "lead bag" about three feet long, eight inches wide and three thick, is filled with hot water, and two are shoved into the car on the floor and the passengers use them as we do a soap stone. About 3 o'clock that night the water in the bags became cold, likewise in my veins, and the thermometer had almost reached its lowest notch when relief came and hot water replaced the now almost ice blocks. At 6:30 we arrived at Irun, the town on the frontier between France and Spain, where we must change cars and pass the terrible ordeal of having our baggage ransacked by the high officials with the low salaries. As we open our car door a dozen or more Spaniards welcomed us with their usual warm greeting of "Carry your baggage, sir!" "Bury an orange, sir!" "Give me a penny, sir!" etc., all of course, in Spanish, which we would have understood as well had it been in Greek. Finally a boy who spoke French came along and I embraced him as a friend, indeed, for he certainly was in need—rather we were in need of him. The examination of baggage was only a matter of form, we had been careful not to bring any dutiable goods. I forgot to say that at Paris we could not buy a ticket into Spain, only to the frontier. The railroads of the two countries are not good neighbors—they may be said to be like two families living in the same house.

Our baggage was transferred to the Spanish train without giving up the check, and they did not even ask for it. I bought tickets to Madrid, walked up to our trunks and told the long-nosed Spaniard to check them to Madrid, showing him the tickets, and he complied without demanding proof that I had any claim on the trunks. I wish now I had selected a larger and better one that was beside mine. A glance at the Spanish train convinced us that we did not want third-class on that line for the seats were simply wooden benches, and hard wood, too. The second-class cars were very nice, upholstered and cushioned seats and backs. We are now in Spain, and it is certainly astonishing how noticeable is the difference in the character of the people from those we have just left behind. One could awake from a sound sleep and know at once that one was in Spain, for the first thing that attracts our attention is a large, three-story stone building, just like a railroad round-house, and about three times as large. This is the "Plaza de Toros," the place where the bull fights are given.

As soon as we leave Irun we begin to ascend the Pyrenees, and a more delightful railroad trip I never experienced. The speed of the train was about twenty miles an hour, and sometimes two engines were required. For two hours we climbed those azure tinted peaks, only to find higher ones further on. We passed through scores of tunnels, some a mile long, and it will amuse you to know that the cars were not lighted. The mountains are quite thickly settled, mostly by shepherds, and such sheep I never saw, their wool is celebrated the world over, and seems to grow in long curls reaching nearly to the ground. They were very large and some are black and brown. After four hours of continued interest, during which time our faces were glued to the windows, we reached the summit and a new sight equally as interesting suddenly came in view. The valley, miles in the distance and far below us, lay the great valley from whence we so recently came. Range after range of mountains, one over-lapping the other, fading away in the distance until completely lost in the beautiful Spanish bluesky. The top of the mountain was not unlike the Mohawk valley in York state. Fine farming land and highway roads nicely acedemized. At all the small stations where our train did not stop were women, depot agents, and they would stand close to the track with a green flag tightly furled holding it at arms length, straight in front of them. Here we see them using a horse in place of a switch engine. We stopped forty minutes at a place and were told they were changing the machine (engine). Often we passed farms where the man and wife, each with a yoke of oxen, were plowing. The plow is a straight piece of iron that only scratches the ground, and has but one handle to guide it with. The women at work in the fields wear red petticoats, purple waists and white caps. The men wear short trousers, low shoes, a red or yellow belt at the waist and a red turban.

We arrived at Madrid at 6:10 a. m. Our friends who were to meet us at the depot, were conspicuous

If a foreign fleet should put New York under tribute and absolutely paralyze business, the labor councils that denounced the proposition to build coast defenses would be the first to suffer from stagnation of trade and the enormously high price of provisions.

It is stated that Benjamin Bickman of Farmingdale, N. Y., has an experimental collection of apples in which are over 550 named varieties. The differences are in many cases so slight as to be unappreciable to any but an expert, but the 550 different varieties are valued for.

Jane Eyre, a full-blooded Pawnee Indian girl, was graduated a few days ago from the Pennsylvania normal school, and has gone West to work among her people. She herself took the name of Charlotte Bronte's heroine whom she admires.

A New Orleans newspaper called the municipal government of that city a den of thieves and vandals for $100,000 damages. The amount awarded was $200, which looks like a repetition of the offense.

Italy and Spain will not declare a dividend on their colonial possessions this year, and some of the larger nations of Europe are likely to meet with unpleasant difficulties in slipping up the earth to suit their interests.

The European dream of the subjugation of weak races in distant parts of the world has been rudely disturbed of late. Italy now curses the Abyssinian empire, and Spain suspects that there was a centipede or two in the Cuban bush.

The German emperor is building a new racing yacht, and Americans would be glad to see him with $100,000 to purchase a competitor. He has promised said than Duranvan, and his originalities of speech would be pardoned.

The new United States ram Katabin has gone into commission with a crew of ninety men and seven officers. This ship has some novel features, and is a matter of conjecture, but just what it can accomplish in a sea-faring life is up to the straight at its invading fleet and try conclusions.

A San Francisco servant is laboring on a scheme of living, chiefly involving star starvation, by which human life can be prolonged even to twenty years. But with the help of pure which a life would be but a large existence during the second century and we doubt very much if the plan is destined to become popular.

Now that the supreme court of Pennsylvania has decided that Murderer Ho'nes must hang, and he is seeking such religious consolation as he can be procured, there is just a possibility that he may consent to throw some light upon his phenomenal criminal career. In any event the country is well satisfied that his fate is determined.

It is now said that the reason why Gen. Ballington is evidently a supporter of the home mission idea.

An American expert in petroleum, who has been looking over the Russian oil fields, reports that the oil of this country is not likely to be displaced by that of Russia though there will be some competition in foreign countries. The quality of the Russian oil is improving, but the American industry also advances, and there are large sources of supply in this country that are as yet untapped.

Speaking of coast fortifications, the works that gave the United States the most trouble during the civil war were built of earth at short notice, like Fort Fisher. Fort Sumter was battered into a pile of rubble and then became impregnable; Fort Pulaski, the defense of Savannah, depended upon its walls of brick, and it was not until a few hours after the siege batteries opened upon it.

French editors are always coming when they mention names and places in America. One of them says Spain will not retreat before "Sherman, the brother of the slayer of the Colorado Indians." The Frenchman had Sherman and the Germans in mind. Victor Jurek referred to Grant as the executioner of John Brown, a statement supposed to have some relation to the fact that Lee commanded the troops that captured Brown.

Several Russian war ships are wintering in Khabarovsk bay, and one of them secured in this harbor is one of the most important gateways of Northern China. Its position is convenient to Corea, and is one of the sea portals of Pekin. A coal field is situated within 100 miles of the bay, and near it is one of the best iron-mining centers of China. While the other powers of Europe are making faces at the Monroe doctrine, Russia is walking off with prizes that seemed beyond its reach a few months ago.

A humorist's Teeth
Nothing that Nye had very white teeth, a remark upon their regularity and whiteness, and asked him what kept them so white. "Oh, that's natural," he said. "All teeth remain white if they are properly cared of. Of course, never drink hot drinks, always brush my teeth every morning and evening, avoid all acids, and although I use a tooth powder, I don't use it."

"And this is all you do to keep your teeth white?" I asked. "Well, I am brushing them with a fact that I put them in a glass of soft water nights."

MILITIA IN CHARGE?

KENTUCKY'S LEGISLATURE WILL END IN A BLAZE OF GLORY.

Gov. Bradley Calls Out the Militia to Preserve Order at the Capitol and the Soldiers Have Possession of the Grounds—Only One Day More in Which to Elect Senator Blackburn's Successor.

Frankfort, Ky., March 18.—To-day's session in the senatorial contest flashed in the van. Bitter talk and a fruitless effort to settle the dispute features have been present every day since the fight began. The scenes, however, had a different setting, and the dramatic personae were added about 500 blue coats from Louisville, Lexington and Frankfort. The substitution of soldiers in the place of the militia does not appear on the surface because the reason for its presence was apprehension of the perpetration of violence. The companies of the militia guard took up their position on the state house grounds this morning and the Kentucky legislature adjourned for the day. The militia were to meet in the morning in the capitol. The presence of this armed force was the subject of numerous resolutions, and the militia were to meet in the morning in the capitol. OWING TO ILL HEALTH

P. H. Kelly Makes a Voluntary Retirement.

St. Paul, March 17.—P. H. Kelly is seriously ill at his rooms in the Merchants hotel. He has long been suffering from asthma, and a cold which he recently contracted aggravated the trouble, and is attended with complications. He is now in a most critical condition. All access to him has been forbidden by his physician, Dr. Charles B. Smith, and even the secretary of the P. H. Kelly Mercantile company was refused admission to see him yesterday.

In view of the extensive business of his concern, in connection with his serious illness, Mr. Kelly concluded to retire, and his estate is being placed in the hands of a trustee to wind up his business by putting it in charge of competent and trustworthy men, instead of having it run along for several years in the probate court.

Accordingly, on Saturday, while Mr. Kelly was still in bed, he made a voluntary assignment of his individual property to John F. Meagher of Mankato, which will be followed to-day by the assignment of the mercantile business of the Kelly Mercantile company, in which he has a controlling interest. It is believed that Mr. Kelly will be selected as assignee for the company. It is gratifying to be informed that the assets of the company are well known, and are largely in excess of the liabilities. The credit of the mercantile company is most excellent, having a rating in commercial records of $500,000.

Doesn't Sound Well.

H. W. Crowell, an attorney from St. Cloud, who was in attendance at the recent term of court here, had himself interviewed in a recent issue of the Journal Press of this city in regard to Pryde who was condemned to be hung for a brutal murder, and if he had confined himself strictly to facts the interview would have read better. He states that "the theory that Pryde killed his victim for money which he was supposed to have on his person is a wrong one, but was simply for the desire for taking human life. The opportunity presented itself, and the means of doing the deed consumed his desire." The facts are that the "opportunity presented itself" because Pryde had planned the murder a week ahead and had deceived his victim to this city, and as to the theory that the murder was not for money it is exploded by the statement of Mr. Lum in open court, that Pryde went through Patterson's pockets after he shot him, but didn't get anything. Further on Mr. Crowell says: "Pryde received his sentence with a calmness that was pitiable to behold. He was totally unaffected by his awful fate, and smiled during the court's sentence. In fact the court was vastly more moved by the sentence than the culprit, for Judge Holland, who is a man past the meridian of life, was so weak when he had completed his task that he could scarcely move." As far as Pryde's smiling when sentence was passed upon him, Mr. Crowell must have been the only one of an audience of 600 people who saw the "smile" and every eye in the room was centered upon the murderer, and he was as far from smiling as the statement is from the facts.

The Motion Denied.

As indicated in our last issue Leon E. Lum appeared before Judge Holland on Monday in the Pryde murder case and made an argument for a bill of exceptions to go the supreme court on a question as to whether previous good character and the plea of guilty did not constitute exceptional circumstances in the meaning of the law. Judge Holland denied the motion.

Dress and Address.

Mrs. Isabelle Martin of San Francisco created something of a furor in court the other morning by appearing as her own attorney. She stated her case, made objections and took exceptions with the easy grace of a person bred to the law. And all the time she wore a Paris gown.

New Point in Court Etiquette.

Miss Mary Philbrook, New Jersey's first woman lawyer, was in the chambers in Jersey City a few days ago to make a motion concerning the foreclosure of a mortgage. All the other lawyers present had their hats off, and Miss Philbrook was in doubt as to whether she ought to take hers off, too, out of respect to the court.

To settle the point she walked up close to the bench and said to the judge: "I am, your honor, a woman lawyer, and I am here to make a motion for the removal of my hat. I am, your honor, a woman lawyer, and I am here to make a motion for the removal of my hat. I am, your honor, a woman lawyer, and I am here to make a motion for the removal of my hat."

"Oh, no, it is not necessary. Proceed with your motion."

Miss Philbrook made her motion tersely and with the utmost self-possession. The chancellor reserved decision.

Mary A. Livermore.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday very quietly at Melrose on Dec. 19. She had a bad cold and was confined to her room most of the day. She received many congratulations by letter and telegraph and many presents. In the evening she made an address in the First Universalist church at Lynn, "A Dream of Tomorrow." At the close of the lecture she held a brief reception and received the congratulations of many friends. A formal celebration took place at Salem on Dec. 23, when Mrs. Livermore was the guest at the Thought and Work club. Mrs. Livermore at 75 is fuller of power than any young woman in Massachusetts. These are many happy returns of the day—Boston Woman's Journal.

Athletics at Bryn Mawr.

Bryn Mawr is keeping up with the other women's colleges as far as athletics are concerned. The Philadelphia Ledger says that Frederick Law Olmsted is now at work upon plans for the grounds. These provide for a circular bicycle track with four laps to the mile, and within this is a large space for tennis, basketball and other sports. This will be so arranged that in winter time it can be flooded and provide a fine skating pond for the students. These grounds are kept in order by an athletic association of the undergraduates, who manage such affairs in much the same fashion as they are looked after at men's colleges.

Miss Noe Tunda.

Miss Noe Tunda, now a special student at a New England woman's college, is busy these days with philanthropic for a fund to give Japanese women a four years' training in America and fit them for their training. Miss Tunda is a woman suffragist in America, but it is feared that if she should divulge her broad views in the land of the mikado she would be a woman sufferer.
